Carmelo Guastella Mens style Journalist

Carmelo's skills as a men's hairstylist and shaving expert, his scientific knowledge of grooming products and his celebrity clientele make him a unique personality in the world of men's grooming as well as a valid member of the team. He is frequently invited by the media to talk about his industry and is also the subject of much media coverage himself. His dedication to ensuring his company sets the pace for men's cutting and styling is matched by his belief that every man should leave his chair with the perfect look.

Paul McKeown Watch Journalist

Born in 1963, Paul's spare time as a boy was spent hunting around antique shops. His obsession with horology took on a new role when his Grandfather passed away and left him a 1902 Omega fob watch. From that day he started to collect and occasionally sell, fine timepieces. Paul says, "A watch tells me thekind of person you are! For instance, you can't drive your Ferrari into a club or restaurant yet you can walk in with a watch of likewise value. This is the reason I am still fascinated at the way one is judged by one's watch!"

He has travelled around the world and has spent time in such places as the Caribbean, the USA, South-East Asia, Europe and South America – where he stayed for three months while on honeymoon. He's a big fan of Leeds United and is also a keen poker player, having finished 7th at the APAT UK Championships in 2014 - and he has also competed at the European Championships. Tom is based in the small town of Howden in East Yorkshire, where he lives with his wife and daughter.

Reece Clarke Wine Journalist

An avid fine wine collector and participant at numerous tastings and events held throughout the year, he is an ex-on trade buyer as well as having many years of experience in hospitality and corporate event management. Reece can usually be found in his favourite local wine bar in Swiss Cottage, The Arches, enjoying something decent! Reece gained his knowledge of wine through years of tasting, reading and visiting many of the World's famous wine regions.

Paul Matthews Golf & Features Editor

As a general sport nut, injuries have taken their toll and Paul now focuses on golf - although still follows his beloved rugby & cricket as closely as possible. He can be found on any golf course that comes highly recommended, as long as there is sunshine and good company! His day job is running an accountancy practice, which fortunately gives the opportunity for 'work' golf as well as his other favourite pastimes - fine food & wine. When Paul is not searching for his last drive, or his next claret, he can be found running around after his children and enjoying some quality family time.

Bruce Milani Gallieni Diving Editor

Bruce Milani Gallieni lives between London and Milan and spends most of his time running his motorcycle and scooter business in the metropolis. When not on the road, his forays with diving have clocked up many dives in the depths of the big blue seas for both pleasure and research. He is a trustee of MAST, the Maritime Archeological Sea Trust, and contributes to DIVER magazine. As a fully qualified PADI staff diving instructor, and rescue diver, he has extensively explored waters from the Atlantic to the Red Sea, and from the Caribbean to the Pacific, in search of the tranquility, respite and wildlife that reigns undiscovered below the surface. In Bruce's words: "We are privileged to explore a part of the world most never get to see".
